

ASLEF and RMT reps say: Station job cuts affect train drivers

"London Underground may say that the station job cuts don't affect train staff - but we say that they do affect train staff."

Terry Wilkinson
ASLEF Executive

"The driver would often end up alone when things went wrong. It's unacceptable and dangerous. It undermines basic safety procedures drivers have been trained in, which LUL now wants to change. No way should we let stations be destaffed like this."

Olly New
RMT Executive

"No guards, no tickets, no station staff, no-go areas - and no wonder! We don't want to run the gauntlet on our own with no assistance available."

Dave Rayfield
RMT, Trains Health & Safety
Council

"ASLEF is obviously concerned that, should incidents occur on single-driver-operated trains, there would not be the back up needed if station staff are cut to the minimum."

Steve Grant
ASLEF District Organiser
