

STATION STAFF

SAVE OUR RAILWAYS

Rally and lobby of parliament, October 25
from 12:30 Methodist Central Hall Westminster, London SW1H 9NH

Sir Roy McNulty has reported to the government on how the cost of Britain's railways might be reduced. He wants to protect multi-million pound dividends to private shareholders and instead attacks you, the rail worker. McNulty proposes:

Massive job losses : Pay freezes : Reduced standards of safe working

TIME TO FIGHT BACK - JOIN THE RALLY!

Station Staff and McNulty

This is the biggest attack on rail workers' jobs, pay and conditions since privatisation. It threatens everything you and your union have fought for and won.

McNulty wants to SLASH your conditions of service:

- the removal of "limitations on work schedules" which have been introduced for your safety and that of the travelling public, as well as to ensure a work-life balance
- a reduction in the amount of overtime available but increasing the maximum amount of time a person can work in a day
- the removal of enhancements associated with weekend working;
- reducing the length of and payment for meal and refreshment breaks, and changing the times at which they can be taken;
- reducing equipment preparation time
- reducing the time currently available to staff to rest between shifts;
- Benchmarking your pay against those in outside industries where there are no unions to defend pay and conditions

McNulty wants these inferior conditions for new entrants creating a two-tier workforce.

McNulty says you are unproductive!

He claims that rail workers should lose their jobs and those who remain have pay freezes and inferior conditions because he says there has been a 50 per cent increase in staff costs since privatisation. This claim is completely misleading.

McNulty ignores the fact that due to economic growth over most of the period of the study passenger journeys have increased by 59 per cent, passenger kms by 50 per cent and passenger revenues per member of staff by 56 per cent. In fact, staff productivity has more than offset increases in staff costs.

McNulty claims that only 20 per cent of trains are dispatched by station staff and that this isn't always necessary. TOCs have been asked to review station staffing as a "matter of priority".

In attacking Station Staff, McNulty focuses solely on the dispatch of trains ignoring the role station staff play, and the stated purpose of your jobs, in providing quality customer service at stations, ensuring passengers are kept well informed, maintaining health and safety standards, arranging alternative travel for passengers when required and ensuring the security of stations amongst other tasks.

McNulty claims the number of station staff could be reduced through:

- the replacement of the remaining "slam-door" rolling stock with carriages with power-operated doors;
- the redesign of some stations with resulting improvements in sight lines and crowd dispersal; and
- an increased use of remote monitoring from central control points.

It also "recognises that TOCs are free to make commercial judgements on the need for dispatch staff".

The government will produce a Rail White Paper this autumn. If it decides to implement the McNulty report, it will be a disaster for rail workers and for passengers.

RMT is fighting back with a huge Save Our Railways Rally and lobby of parliament, starting in Methodist Central Hall, Storey's Gate, Westminster, London SW1H 9NH from 12:30 on October 25. Get the date in your diary NOW.

Visit www.rmt.org.uk/mcnulty for more information including: -

- Bob Crow Interview on McNulty
- RMT Submission to McNulty
- RMT Press releases
- RMT Parliamentary Group: debates and motions

